Scientific Seminar Title: Integrity... No to Administrative and Financial Corruption

Lecturer: Dr. Mohamed Abdel Mawgoud Hassan Al-Badrani

Department: Geomatics

Date: (April 7, 2026)

Main Topics Covered in the Seminar:

- The concept of integrity and its importance in building institutions and strengthening public trust.
- Forms of administrative and financial corruption such as bribery, nepotism, abuse of power, and financial waste.
- Causes of the spread of corruption such as weak oversight, lack of awareness, and decline in ethical values.
- Effects of corruption on the individual, the institution, and society, including weakened development and loss of justice.
- The role of educational and oversight institutions in promoting a culture of integrity and combating corruption.

Key Recommendations

- Promoting a culture of integrity and transparency in all institutions through continuous awareness campaigns.
- Activating laws and oversight mechanisms to hold corrupt individuals accountable and reduce violations.
- Spreading ethical and professional awareness among employees and students.
- Encouraging the reporting of corruption cases and providing protection for whistleblowers.
- Integrating integrity concepts into school curricula to build a conscious and responsible generation.

 Head of Scientific
 Department: Dr. Dasa Talib Hashim

Sarab, Seminar
 Coordinator
 Sarab Waad Awli

The title of the scientific seminar is rebellion, extremism, and fanaticism.

Lecturer's Name: Dr. Mohamed Abdel Mawgoud Hassan Al-Badrani

Scientific Department: Geomatics Department

Implementation date: (April 8, 2026)

The main topics covered in the seminar:

Key concepts: Defining rebellion, extremism, and fanaticism, and explaining the differences between them.

The reasons and motives include weak religious faith, family disintegration, psychological pressures, and the influence of the media.

The effects and consequences on the individual include psychological distress, on the family (disintegration), and on society (deviance and lack of awareness).

stability).

The role of the family and educational institutions in preventing deviance and promoting moderation.

These are treatment methods: dialogue, awareness, psychological counseling, and promoting moderate values.

The most important recommendations:

Promoting a culture of moderation and dialogue within the family and educational institutions to reduce rebellion and extremism.

Attention should be paid to proper upbringing based on a balance between firmness and compassion.

Activating the role of media, religious and educational institutions in spreading intellectual awareness and confronting extremism.

Providing psychological and educational guidance to young people to address problems before they worsen.

This involves monitoring children intellectually and behaviorally and protecting them from the negative influences of the surrounding environment.
